Help G-STIC chart the way for a solution repository

Future G-STIC editions will increasingly focus on real-world challenges by taking up specific SDG objectives. G-STIC 2019 will be geared towards selecting clusters of technologies as a first step in charting the way for a solution repository and a one-stop shop for knowledge about transformative, innovative technologies that cut across industrial sectors, foster economic development and inspire societies to move toward more sustainable development patterns.

Join the free Special G-STIC Event on 16 May at UN Headquarters

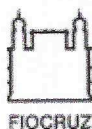

Participation is free of charge. Seats are available on a first come, first served basis. However, you must register in advance (no later than 9 May) if you wish to attend. In case you have registered for the STI Forum, you need to register separately for this Special G-STIC Event.

REGISTER NOW

Please be aware that, for security reasons, no walk-up registrations will be permitted. If you are not registered in advance, you will not be permitted to enter the UN grounds.

We look forward to meeting you on 16 May.
